About Sewanee

The University of the South is home to both an outstanding liberal arts college and a seminary of the Episcopal Church. Located atop the Cumberland Plateau between Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn., Sewanee's 13,000-acre campus, the second largest campus in the United States, provides vast opportunities for research, recreation, and reflection. Within the traditionally strong curriculum of humanities, sciences, and graduate theological studies, Sewanee faculty members promote intellectual growth, critical thinking, and hands-on research. According to its mission statement, Sewanee "is an institution of the Episcopal Church dedicated to the pursuit of knowledge, understanding, and wisdom in close community and in full freedom of inquiry, and enlightened by Christian faith in the Anglican tradition, welcoming individuals from all backgrounds, to the end that students be prepared to search for truth, seek justice, preserve liberty under law, and serve God and humanity."

Sewanee's Relationship to the Episcopal Church

The University of the South, an institution of the Episcopal Church, was founded by church leaders from the southeastern United States in 1857. Sewanee is the only university in the nation that is owned and governed by dioceses of the Episcopal Church, specifically the 28 dioceses that are successors to the original founding dioceses. The university's Board of Trustees is composed of the bishops of the 28 owning dioceses, together with clerical and lay representatives elected by each diocese and representatives of other University constituencies. The Board of Regents, to which the Board of Trustees delegates some of its responsibilities for governance, is composed of Episcopal bishops, priests, and lay people, and may include a limited number of members of other Christian bodies. The Chancellor of the University, elected by the Board of Trustees, is a bishop from one of the 28 owning dioceses. The historic ownership and governance of the university by these Episcopal dioceses has produced a living synergy of leadership, resource, and mutual support, enriching the Church and advancing the university's role in American higher education.

2010-2011 Highlights

The fiscal year began with the “Leave Taking and Beginning” in All Saints’ Chapel on July 2, 2010. After 10 years of service as the university’s 15th vice-chancellor, Joel Cunningham was vested in his “teaching gown,” ready to assume his role as a member of the College faculty. John McCardell officially began his work as Sewanee’s 16th vice-chancellor. This ceremony was followed McCardell’s formal installation at the Founders’ Day Convocation on Oct. 12.

On Feb. 16, 2011, in a move to address the spiraling costs of higher education, the university’s Board of Regents approved a 10 percent reduction in tuition and fees at the College for the coming 2011-2012 academic year. To the same end, The School of Theology increased its per student basic scholarship by $1,000.

On Feb. 23, 2011, John Swallow, C’89, was appointed as acting associate provost for the university, effective June 1.

On June 7, 2011, Parker Oliver, C’89, was appointed executive director of marketing and communications, effective June 20.

On July 7, 2011, the University of the South joined six other members of the NCAA Division III Southern Collegiate Athletic Conference (SCAC) in announcing plans to leave the conference effective July 1, 2012, to form a new athletic conference beginning with the 2012-13 season.
