Application Instructions/Requirements for students entering before August 2020.

- 1. Need-based University grants are awarded after all sources of income and estimated expenses are identified. It is the responsibility of the student to provide the required information, including: financial aid application, Form 1040 federal income tax return from the last completed filing year, forms verifying diocesan and parish support, copies of applications for outside scholarships, documentation of student's income, documentation of spouse's current and anticipated income, documentation of child support, documentation of uninsured medical expenses, documentation of assets, and cost of health insurance. The current and anticipated income of a spouse must be included even if the spouse is not living in Sewanee. Each year, the University determines a maximum amount of need-based aid for applicants. The maximum amount takes into account the size of the household. Need-based awards will not exceed that amount.
- 2. Signed forms from the sponsoring parish and the sponsoring diocese, indicating all local sources of support, are required as part of the need-based financial aid application (except in the M.A. program, in which church sponsorship is not required.) A list of potential resources for outside scholarship assistance is provided under Other Sources of Grants, published in the Catalog and on the website.

https://theology.sewanee.edu/files/resources/2020possible-sources-for-outside-scholarships-and-.pdf.

Many students find other potential resources on the Internet. It is the responsibility of all applicants for need-based financial aid to show evidence of submitting applications for scholarships from at least three outside sources in addition to diocese and parish, before the University will award additional financial aid. To offer an additional incentive to seek outside scholarships, students who win outside scholarships, not including diocesan, parish, or family grants, will have only fifty percent (50%) of that additional aid counted as income in calculating their financial need.

- 3. Information about all assets must be provided as part of the need-based financial aid application. A percentage of all assets held by the student and the student's spouse (if applicable) is considered as available annually to help meet the costs while in seminary. For the current year, that percentage is ten percent (10%) for all assets. There are special provisions for retirement accounts to which the student does not have access without penalty. Twenty-five percent (25%) of such retirement accounts are exempt, and an additional 10 percent for students under 59.5 years of age. For students with dependents who are attending college full-time, the University will exempt up to $10,000 per dependent college student. Please report total gross income and total value of assets. Any exclusions will be calculated by financial aid staff according to policies. Debt and debt service cannot be considered as part of a student's financial need, although in some cases liabilities may be set against assets (e.g. house mortgages).
- 4. There is a minimum amount, annually set, which a student and (if applicable) a student's spouse must contribute toward their own support, irrespective of need or employment. For the current year, the contribution is $1,500 for a student and $2,000 for a spouse. That contribution is waived in the case of a spouse caring for children who are too young to be eligible for Sewanee childcare. To encourage spousal employment, the University will exclude one half of spouses' gross earnings from consideration as resources.

- 5. The School of Theology Student Employment Program (work-study) is available to eligible seminary students through positions created in various departments of the University and the School of Theology. Students receiving need-based financial aid are encouraged to have Student Employment Program or other jobs if positions are available. A full-time seminary student may work up to a maximum of 12 hours per week, depending on availability of jobs. Spouses may seek temporary employment (up to 12 hours per week) through the same work program when positions are available.
- 6. Estimated cost of attendance is based on a budget set by the institution. The budget components used in estimating cost of attendance are based on tuition and fees and a modest to moderate allowance for housing, food, utilities, books, transportation, and other incidental personal expenses. In addition, students may submit documented health insurance premiums, out-of-pocket medical expenses, and certain childcare expenses (see item 11), which will be added to the cost of attendance within predetermined limits. First-year students may estimate healthcare and childcare expenses until final plans are made and documentation of actual expenses can be obtained. If the documentation of actual expenses varies from the original report, it must be reported and aid will be recalculated.
- 7. Students who purchase a house in the Sewanee area and apply for financial aid must declare the house as an asset.
- 8. Normally, the University considers only the expense of one household for purposes of financial aid; the expense of a second household, away from Sewanee, is in general not included. In special cases, when a student can demonstrate the necessity of maintaining two households, a limited proportion of the extra household expense may be allowable.
- 9. If both spouses wish to enroll in seminary and seek financial aid at the same time, they must state this in the additional information section at the end of the application. Tuition and fees and health insurance for both students will be combined with one living expense component in developing the cost of attendance.
- 10. No educational expenses for children are allowable with regard to financial aid. For students in the Master of Divinity degree program, the University and St. Andrew's-Sewanee School provide significant tuition assistance for dependents attending St. Andrew's-Sewanee.
- 11. Childcare expenses are not considered except for daycare for pre-school children of students who are single, geographically single, or who have spouses employed outside the School of Theology employment programs.
- 12. Submit your application to: Seminary Office of Financial Aid, 335 Tennessee Avenue, Sewanee, Tennessee 37383-0001
