Celebrating Women Faculty of the School of Theology

Earlier this month, on Instagram, we featured a historical Faces & Places of Hamilton Hall in honor of Women's History Month.

Edna Evans was the first female faculty member at the School of Theology. She served as assistant professor of Christian education, homiletics, and evangelism from 1969-1985. During her time at the School of Theology, she also chaired the Missions Committee.

Upon her retirement, Room 123 in Hamilton Hall was named for her and served as the homiletics classroom/lab for many years.

A Conversation with Julia Gatta

In celebration of Women's History Month, Sewanee Theologians sat down with the Rev. Dr. Julia Gatta to find out more about how she came to the Mountain, her goals as a theological educator, and some of the other women in history she admires.
